A Bold New Diocesan Project – Tabor House. In partnership with Fr Hudson's Care, Housing Justice and others, the diocese is going to open in Birmingham a permanent Night Shelter. Situated at St Anne's Community Centre, it will eventually accommodate up to 16 people at a time. The aim is to empower rough sleepers to move off the streets and to regain their dignity and purpose. To do this they need volunteers who will act as mentors, welcomers and team leaders. Anyone wishing to help should contact Christy Acton - ChristyActon@fatherhudsons.org.uk.

WHAT DOES THE LAW OF THE CHURCH SAY? (4)

Forming a Catholic Priest: the proliferation of "Born again/ Pentecostal Churches" has diluted the authority of Christian religion. You need not walk several streets before you come across someone who with a bible in hand gives himself biblical tittles such as "patriarch so and so," "apostle so and so" "prophet so and so" "evangelist so and so. These are biblical tittles which no body should lay claim of just to market oneself. When you look around to see whether the person claiming such tittles had any formation, you get shocked. What most of them claim is to have had a call as in a dream. Lack of formation in sound doctrine by so called evangelical preachers has dealt serious blows on the Christian doctrine.

The formation of a man to serve at the altar (a priest) goes back to Jesus himself; he formed his apostles (Mk 9:30-37). St. Paul writing to Timothy and to Titus gave them the guidelines to follow in the selection of those to become priest or deacons (1Tim 3:1-13, Titus 1:5-9) Christian sects which have no formation procedures of its pastors end up with mediocre preachers prone to teaching heresy than sound doctrine. But what does the Law of the church say about the training of a priest?

Canon 242: In each country there is to be a programme of priestly formation. drawn up by the Bishop's conference and approved by the Holy See.

Canon 244 the spiritual formation and the doctrinal instruction of students are to be so planned that the students each according to his talents develops the required human maturity and acquire the spirit of the gospel and close relationship with Christ.

Canon 245 students are to be so trained that filled with the love for Christ's church they are linked to the Roman Pontiff the successor of Peter , to their own bishop as his faithful co-workers and to their brethren in friendly cooperation.

Canon 252 Theological formation given in the light of faith and under the guidance of the teaching authority of the church (magisterium) is to be imparted such that students learn the whole of catholic teaching based of Divine Revelation so that in their ministry they may proclaim it and defend it. They're to be instructed with special care in sacred scripture, in dogmatic theology based on the written Word of God and on Tradition so as to penetrate deeply into the mystery of salvation.

Canon 254 students are to be taught so that they themselves are enabled to research various questions by their own research in a scientific manner. Catholic priests spend many years of formation they are well prepared for their ministry.

Thought on marriage: The category of gift (the disinterested gift of self) takes on special meaning in the marriage covenant. The spouses 'mutually give themselves to and accept each other' in a manner proper to the marriage covenant, a manner that presupposes their difference in body and sex and, at the same time, their union in and through this difference.
